1	PROCEEDINGS
2	THE COURT: Good morning. This is Judge Sean Lane in
3	the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of
4	New York. And we're here for the case of Rudolph W. Giuliani,
5	a Chapter 11 case, 23-12055, and more particularly, to talk
6	about the proposed dismissal order on the heels of the Court's
7	decision issued on Friday that the case should be dismissed.
8	There are no shortage of variety of orders that have been
9	provided to the Court, and we'll talk about that all this
10	morning.
11	So let's start with appearances. First, on behalf of
12	the debtor.
13	MR. BERGER: Yeah. Yeah. Good morning, Your Honor.
14	Heath Berger of Berger, Fischoff, Shumer, Wexler & Goodman,
15	attorneys for the debtor. And my partner Gary Fischoff is also
16	on the line.
17	THE COURT: All right. Good morning.
18	MR. FISCHOFF: Good morning, Your Honor.
19	THE COURT: And on behalf of the official committee.
20	MR. DUBLIN: Morning, Your Honor. Phil Dublin and
21	Amelia Danovich, Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld, for the
22	committee.
23	THE COURT: Good morning.
24	On behalf of the Freeman plaintiffs.
25	MS. STRICKLAND: Good morning, Your Honor. Rachel

	11
1	Strickland and James Burbage on behalf of the Freeman
2	plaintiffs. Willkie Farr & Gallagher.
3	THE COURT: Good morning.
4	On behalf of the United States Trustee's office.
5	MS. SCHWARTZ: Good morning, Your Honor. Andrea
6	Schwartz for the United States Trustee. I'm joined by my
7	colleague Daniel Rudewicz.
8	THE COURT: Good morning.
9	And I do also believe I see Mr. Glucksman, so let me
10	get his appearance as well.
11	MR. GLUCKSMAN: Yes, observing. Counsel for creditor
12	Davidoff Hutcher Citron.
13	THE COURT: All right. Good morning.
14	All right. Anyone else who needs to make an
15	appearance?
16	All right. So before we start, there's a couple of
17	stray housekeeping issues that I wanted to address.
18	I think there is a motion of Global Data Risk LLC for
19	leave to redact and file under seal certain confidential
20	information relating to its fee applications, which clearly are
21	contemplated by the discussions we're having. They filed a
22	certificate of no objection. And since I'm getting all of you
23	nice people together here today, I thought I would just throw
24	it out there to make sure that no one has any views about that
25	reguest to seed that particular information. And obviously

12 the sealed information will be available to any party-in-1 2 interest who believes it's necessary for them to form an 3 appropriate view on the fee application, or at least to the 4 professionals. 5 So anybody wish to be heard on this request? MS. SCHWARTZ: Your Honor, Andrea Schwartz for the 6 7 United States Trustee. The proposed order that was sent into the Court was modified after discussions that we had with 8 9 counsel for the committee. The redacted information is strictly limited to the names of five employees of GDR, and we 10 have no objection to that. 11 THE COURT: All right. So I will take it that there 12 will be a revised order submitted on that, and I will look for 13 that in my inbox. And just do me a favor. When you submit it, 14 15 just make it clear in the email that this is the revised order that's been agreed to by the parties, so I can take care of 16 that matter and get that all squared away. Let me just, in an 17 18 abundance of caution --19 MS. DANOVITCH: Your Honor. 20 THE COURT: Yeah, I was --21 If I may, Amelia Danovich, Akin Gump MS. DANOVITCH: Strauss Hauer & Feld, on behalf of the committee. We did file 22 23 a revised proposed order with the certificate of no objection, 24 which should be at docket number 298. 25 THE COURT: All right. You're way ahead of me. Thank

13 1 you very much. I appreciate it. I'll get that entered today 2 right after we're done here. 3 So in keeping with the practical matters that need to 4 be addressed other than the disputed issue today, we had 5 originally scheduled the hearing tomorrow as to the adversary 6 proceeding in the summary judgment motion. I would think, in 7 light of all the events, it's pretty clear that that's canceled. But again, since I have the benefit of you all being 8 9 here today, I wanted to confirm that's everybody's 10 understanding. 11 And I would think that consistent with the dismissal that that adversary proceeding is no longer something that's 12 13 going to move forward and would be dismissed. That's the general rule. It's not without exception, but the exceptions 14 15 wouldn't seem to apply here. But since I have the benefit of you all being here, I just wanted to make sure we were all on 16 17 the same page. 18 So Ms. Strickland, any thoughts from you? 19 MS. STRICKLAND: I agree, Your Honor. 20 THE COURT: All right. Thank you very much. 21 And so with that, I can't think of any other 22 preliminary matters before we turn to the question of the 23 dismissal order and the related question of fees. But if anybody does have such a preliminary matter, let me know now.

So I thought it only fair to give you a

All right.

sense of where I am on this particular question. And obviously I'm happy to hear from anybody. But I did a little independent research, as judges are want to do, so that I make sure I have my ducks in a row and well informed.

So to just start with the pretty clear notion that bankruptcy courts retain jurisdiction to deal with ancillary matters after dismissal, such as an application for an award of attorney's fees or other applications. So it's pretty clear I have jurisdiction in this case to address the fee application of the committee's professionals. I think everybody was operating under that assumption. But again, it's always good to have case authority and just sort of level set what we're doing and what we're not doing. That's all discussed in a decision by Judge Glenn called Parklex Associates, 435 B.R.

195. It's a case from 2010. There's also a Sixth Circuit decision called 5900 Associates from 2006, 468 F.3d 326.

So just to be clear, I have authority to do that. And I mentioned that because that's clear. What other authority I have or whatever jurisdiction I have beyond that after dismissal is less clear. And so I think that that's an important framing of the issues today because the orders vary greatly on what they provide beyond a garden-variety dismissal.

And so I was struck by the notion in one of the orders about a liquidating trustee. So let me be clear, I think a trustee is what we were fighting about. We were fighting about dismissal, Chapter 7 trustee, and a Chapter 11 trustee. 1 2 you all came in. Gave arguments. We had very helpful 3 conversations. I appreciate everybody's input. And after that 4 issued a decision. And that's happened. We're not going to 5 unring that bell. So what's done is done.

So it is not clear to me, and indeed, I'm inclined to think it is inappropriate for me to provide for a liquidating trustee in a dismissal order. There's no authority provided for me for that proposition, and the cases I've seen don't go And I've been sitting on the bench for fourteen years. I haven't run into such a request.

And so putting aside what people may agree to, and there was some notion in, I believe it was, Mr. Fischoff's letter of July 15th about what the debtor would be willing to do in terms of placing a lien. That's one thing where it affects particular parties that maybe we can have a conversation about. But again, I think liquidating the two apartments is that's what a Chapter 7 trustee would do or a Chapter 11 trustee would do. I don't really know of any authority that I have to do that.

And again, I only thought it was fair, before you all argued, for me to let you know where my thinking is. I'm not trying to surprise anybody. And I'm happy to give you all a chance to talk about your views. So with that I thought, let me hear from you all. So I thought, whether the committee or the Freeman plaintiffs -- maybe we'll start with the Freeman plaintiff, since I think I had requested in the order that they provide an order. So it seems only fair to have them start off.

So let me hear from you, Ms. Strickland.

MS. STRICKLAND: Thank, Your Honor. For the record, Rachel Strickland, Willkie Farr & Gallagher.

So we agree, the last issue is how Mr. Giuliani is going to pay the administrative freight for the case that he commenced. And the discussion that Your Honor had with debtor's counsel on Wednesday, it was clear that there is plenty of law that the administrative claims must indeed be paid. We agree that Your Honor has jurisdiction, and you can condition the dismissal on whatever you want. The interesting --

THE COURT: Well, I would just quibble with whatever I want because I don't think, in life, I get whatever I want, and this job is no exception. But let me throw this out to sort of see if it fits in with your comments.

We rarely see this kind of an issue because, frankly, bankruptcy professionals are very good at trying to figure out how the numbers can add up, should add up where there's questions about administrative insolvency. And the normal path is that people say, here's the amount of money that is available for payment. Maybe a secured creditor has all the value in whatever asset's being sold. And then people will say, well, here's the amount of money that's available, and here are the haircuts the professionals take. I'm not familiar with the current state of play of what's available or not from Mr. Giuliani. But I just throw that out there as the thing that we most commonly see here in the court.

MS. STRICKLAND: So that's where I was going to start, Your Honor. The very first difference between the form of order that we have proposed and supported by the committee and what Mr. Giuliani proposed is you will recall that when estimates were thrown around on last Wednesday, debtor's counsel said he doesn't have that much money. So we weren't quibbling with the concept of getting blood from a stone. Instead, we proposed that we look at his bank accounts, the ones that are property of the estate as of July 11th, and say whatever dollars are in there, in the first instance, those dollars should be applied to the administrative expenses.

Giuliani, not surprisingly, came back in an order that said, no, no, no, no, no. I'd much rather do an IOU on the New York City apartment, offering no liquid assets. So we know that there are liquid assets in the estate. We are not trying to negotiate with a party that's not interested in negotiating in good faith back with us. So we just provided, whatever it is in cash, that should come right off the top and be used to pay the admin. So that's, I think, our first point of 18 departure and is very normal and customary in cases where there 1 2 is a dismissal. 3 As Your Honor notes, I mean, in the dismissals that I 4 see, you don't ever get to this issue because there is 5 sufficient cash to pay the admin. And that's a feature of the 6 structured dismissals that I'm familiar with. What I would --7 THE COURT: So let me ask what was --8 MS. STRICKLAND: -- also point out to Your Honor --9 THE COURT: Let me just ask what your understanding was of the cash that was available. Again, I'm not in the room 10 where these conversations happen, so I appreciate your 11 12 understanding on that. MS. STRICKLAND: I don't have an understanding because 13 this is not a debtor that's remotely forthcoming. So what we 14 15 were proposing was statements don't lie. Pull it up, and show us what the bank balance was as of July 11th on the checking 16 and savings, which are property of the estate. We're not 17 18 trying to overstep our bounds and go into the other exempt accounts, even though I think they are dubious. But again, 19 20 we're trying to stay within the four walls of what is clearly 21 estate property here. 22 And so whatever it is, it is. The bank account will 23 show what the balance was. If he took a bunch of money out following the hearing, it would fly in the face of my final remark in the hearing on the 10th and what Your Honor and debtor's counsel said, oh, no, no, no, we're not going to move anything. Of course we understand the rules that apply. So if that's the case, show us the bank statements. What's ever in the debtor's accounts as of that date, that should be used to pay the admin. And then we only have the remainder.

So I think the dispute starts with should the debtor have to use fair game assets of the estate, the cash, to pay it. And then to the extent that we have a remainder, how is the IOU dealt with. And one of the things that I would point Your Honor to is the Sinker case, which is 113 B.R. 34, 1990. It was a very similar case to the one that we are looking at. It was a dismissal. There were administrative expenses that were outstanding. And what the court ordered in that case was the appointment of a trustee to liquidate just a sufficient amount of the nonexempt unencumbered property to pay administrative expenses.

And so we were asking for the exact same relief here. Akin Gump and Mr. Dublin agreed to do it pro bono, which is a huge benefit. And we aren't looking to, outside of bankruptcy, conduct a liquidation of Mr. Giuliani's assets. We would note that he himself has offered up the New York apartment. The New York apartment has been on and off the market for a year. So what we were proposing as a variation of that is whatever sells first at reasonable value and as prudent, this limited administrative trustee, which Your Honor does have the 20 authority to appoint could, in fact, liquidate that. 1 The 2 moment the admin is paid, there is no basis for that 3 appointment to continue. It would then conclude, and creditors 4 would do whatever creditors are going to do. 5 So that was our suggestion. But at the very least, it 6 is confusing to us why the cash, which is property of the 7 estate, is not being ordered to be used to pay administrative expense claims, which were incurred by a voluntary petition 8 9 filed by the mayor himself. So I would break it into those two pieces. Look, ultimately what the Freeman claimants want is 10 dismissal, full stop. So we don't --11 12 THE COURT: Well, and again, we're not unringing the bell. 13 14 MS. STRICKLAND: Yeah. 15 THE COURT: Just not just to be very clear, it's not a 16 negotiation. That's already been ordered. But there are, as you say, consequences and appropriate ways to handle things in 17 18 light of the dismissal. 19 MS. STRICKLAND: Sure. So what I would say is we've 20 got the very lowest hanging fruit, which is cash in the bank 21 accounts, which you heard a representation from debtor's counsel should not be moved, which should be used to pay the 22 23 admin. The amount is what it is. And those records, based on 24 my experience with banking, exist. So I don't know what the 25 number is --

21 1 THE COURT: Okay. 2 MS. STRICKLAND: -- but it is a notable quantum. 3 THE COURT: All right. Fair enough. That's all very 4 helpful. Anything else, Ms. Strickland, before I continue to 5 circle the virtual room? 6 MS. STRICKLAND: Nope, Your Honor. Thanks. 7 THE COURT: All right. Thank you. All right. So Mr. Dublin, let me hear -- I should 8 9 assume it's you. Let me hear from the committee. Let me say 10 it that way. MR. DUBLIN: Thank you, Your Honor. Phil Dublin, Akin 11 Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld, for the committee. Your Honor, I 12 would echo every one of Ms. Strickland's statements. We 13 believe it is incumbent upon the debtor to satisfy the 14 15 administrative expenses that have incurred in connection with the Chapter 11 case. Those really were down to the GDR fees, 16 once allowed, as well as the U.S. Trustee fees. 17 18 And while we are just like Ms. Strickland, uncertain 19 of the amount of cash that is currently in the estate for the 20 reasons that Ms. Strickland referenced, we do know, all of us 21 know, that there are sufficient nonexempt unencumbered property that is available to satisfy all the administrative expenses. 22 23 And we need to ensure, or we should ensure, that those 24 administrative expenses are paid and that we're not looking at 25 an ultimate race to the courthouse in various states -- and I would appreciate if Ms. Schwartz wouldn't roll her eyes -- with respect to the satisfaction of those obligations.

I think it's noteworthy, at a minimum, in connection with the U.S. Trustee's proposed form of order, that it seeks to satisfy the U.S. Trustee fees within ten days of entry of the order but leaves Global Data Risk unaccounted for with respect to ensuring their payments.

So we're about fairness here, Your Honor, in ensuring that the professionals that provided services to the estate, which were recognized in pleadings filed by the debtor when they were looking to progress -- when the debtor was looking to progress the Chapter 11 cases as providing benefits to the estate, and reasons for, among other things, at the time, the requested extension of exclusivity be satisfied. And we know, again, that there are sufficient assets to satisfy those obligations.

THE COURT: All right. And what I thought I would do at this point is hear from the U.S. Trustee's office and then let the debtor respond to everything on the table.

So let me hear from the UST.

MS. SCHWARTZ: Thank you, Your Honor. Andrea Schwartz for the United States Trustee. In preparing my comments for today, they've been greatly shortened by Your Honor's giving us a level set of where he is, including that the bell has rung.

At the time we were before the Court for the argument on these motions, the Court had three options before it, whether to convert the case to a Chapter 7 and have a liquidating trustee dismiss the case, or appoint a Chapter 11 trustee. Right before the hearing, we learned that the debtor agreed to dismiss the case. Your Honor had full argument on both of those issues. And our position was that it was cause to dismiss or convert, but the Court needed to decide what was in the best interest of creditors, which on July 12th, Your Honor issued the memorandum of decision, deciding that it was in the best interest of creditors was to dismiss the case.

When Your Honor gave his precatory comments today saying that you were struck by the fact that there was a liquidating trustee and in the most recent version of the proposed order, it's now called the liquidating agent, you can imagine we were as well. There is no --

THE COURT: But let me ask you, how do we get the -the point is that if you had a normal process here, you would say you're going to pay the administrative expenses, especially, and you want dismissal. Right. That's sort of part and parcel. And if everybody said, well, there aren't enough assets, then people talk about what to do, but there clearly are significant unencumbered assets. So happily, this is a problem that we don't normally have in this courthouse.
But we have --

MS. SCHWARTZ: Your Honor.

THE COURT: -- in this case. So what's the U.S. 1 2 trustee's office view about how to deal with that problem? 3 MS. SCHWARTZ: Right, Your Honor. And first of all, 4 certainly, we agree that the Court retains jurisdiction to hear 5 the fee application and decide and on notice, and everybody can comment on that and so forth. What we would think would be 6 7 appropriate in this case, and it seems that the debtor is willing to do certain things, is that in the precatory language 8 9 of an order, it can say the debtor agrees to, I don't know, give a lien on -- they've already offered to give a lien on the 10 proceeds of the assets of the sale. Not that the Court orders 11 it because the case is dismissed, but the debtor can certainly 12 13 agree to that. And that could certainly be part of an order that the judge -- that Your Honor enters. I just don't 14 15 think --THE COURT: And so is the notion -- is the notion that 16 I am granting the dismissal on this basis in light of that 17 18 agreement? Because I think the concern is that that agreement 19 would otherwise not be enforceable. Right. So because --20 MS. SCHWARTZ: Well, there is another play --21 THE COURT: -- the idea is to say -- otherwise, the Court would say, we've got to find a mechanism to deal with the 22 23 payment of these administrative expenses. And so that 24 agreement has to be enforceable in some way, shape, or form, or 25 it's --

25 1 MS. SCHWARTZ: That's right. 2 THE COURT: Right, or people are left holding the bag. 3 MS. SCHWARTZ: So another way, Your Honor --4 certainly, we've thought about this because we agree that when 5 you have a bankruptcy case, admin is supposed to be paid as 6 part of the bankruptcy case. And in this case, it's even a 7 lesser expense to the debtor because you've got committee counsel that agreed to do the case pro bono. 8 9 THE COURT: Yeah. No, I think --10 MS. SCHWARTZ: So the debtor can certainly --THE COURT: Wait. Let me stop because that's an 11 important point. I know there was a notion or there was a 12 reaction in court to the size of estimated fees, fee 13 application, but so was the estimated fees, and there was a 14 15 reaction to that that seemed to indicate the debtor thought it 16 was a large amount. It's certainly not a small amount. other hand, the committee attorneys have been doing this pro-17 18 bono, and there no doubt has been a lot of work for the 19 financial advisers to the committee in trying to deal with 20 situation where, as the decision lays forth in detail, there 21 has not been the appropriate level of transparency. 22 So I know that bill is not going to be small, but it 23 could be far higher in this case if it weren't for the fact 24 that various people are serving pro bono. So that's an 25 important point to get out there because people may misperceive

1	what's going on here.
2	MS. SCHWARTZ: Oh, agree, Your Honor.
3	THE COURT: But Ms. Schwartz, go ahead with the rest
4	of your point.
5	MS. SCHWARTZ: I have another I have another
6	suggestion, Your Honor. And that is the parties can enter into
7	a stipulation and then the Court can so order that. Then they
8	can put all the provisions that they want between themselves,
9	whether it's the debtor agrees to give statements of the last
10	account, et cetera, et cetera. They can agree between
11	themselves. The only problem, Judge, is that on the 12th, the
12	Freeman plaintiffs argued to you, dismiss the case and
13	THE COURT: No, no. And they're not backing away from
14	that.
15	MS. SCHWARTZ: Oh, and what I want to add to that I
16	just want to add
17	THE COURT: Again, as I understand it, they're looking
18	for, consistent with the committee, an enforceable way to deal
19	with this, the fees that should be paid. And I get that.
20	MS. SCHWARTZ: I understand that, Judge. But I just
21	want to also say, the order included all these other forms of
22	relief that weren't argued before the Court. So we're kind of,
23	like the Court, trying to see, while we understand the whole
24	concern, at least the concern is that a state-retained
25	professional gets paid for the services that are allowed by the

RUDOLPH W. GIULIANI

Court. It's not to punish the debtor. It's not to exercise other controls over the debtor once a case is dismissed. It's just the problem or the situation of you've got a retained professional and how do you get that retained professional fees determined and paid for.

THE COURT: Yeah. I get it. I don't think there's any difference of opinion on that. I think Ms. Strickland's comments were pretty on the mark that way. So I think it's a question about the appropriate way to have provisions consistent with my appropriate authority, but have provisions that meaningfully will result in the payment. And that can be enforced if they're not handled the way that's being represented. So that's trust but verify, a common situation here in the court.

MS. SCHWARTZ: Well, I think there's a way to resolve all the parties' concerns. Obviously, Your Honor mentioned that he's been on the bench for fourteen years. You're well aware of the U.S. Trustee's position on structured dismissals. We don't believe it was requested, and we don't believe it's warranted.

However, if the debtor wants to agree with the Freeman plaintiffs and the committee enter into a stipulation, I think they're willing to do that, Your Honor. I know you'll hear from the debtor, but they're willing to do that. And then they get held to it by having an order that -- having that

	28
1	stipulation ordered by the Court. Then they have remedies if
2	the debtor does not comply with their agreement. It doesn't
3	sound unreasonable to me, Your Honor, that the Freeman
4	plaintiffs and the committee would like to know what are the
5	assets that are available and
6	THE COURT: Look, no, I think I got it.
7	MS. SCHWARTZ: Okay.
8	THE COURT: All right. Anything else, Ms. Schwartz?
9	MS. STRICKLAND: Your Honor, may I be heard for one
10	more minute?
11	THE COURT: Sure. Well, let me ask let me make
12	sure.
13	Ms. Schwartz, are you done with your comments?
14	MS. SCHWARTZ: I think so, Your Honor. I think you
15	said you got it, and I think I got it out there.
16	THE COURT: All right. Yes, Ms. Strickland.
17	MS. STRICKLAND: Thank you, Your Honor. I think the
18	part where we depart from Ms. Schwartz is the case is not
19	dismissed. We are not living in the aftermath of a Chapter 11.
20	Sitting here today, dismissal
21	THE COURT: Yeah, but again, you had me at hello about
22	what you're trying to do and your initial comments. The
23	problem is that the order reads like a Chapter 7 trustee.
24	We're talking about a liquidating trustee over not only the New
25	York apartment, but the Florida apartment. Those are the two

1 assets in the case. I mean, it reads like a Chapter 7 case.

Again, I understand what you're trying to accomplish. But as I say in a lot of cases, I don't have a magic equity wand. I have to be able handle these things in a way consistent with my jurisdiction and hear the facts on the ground are a dismissal. And so that's what I'm trying to navigate. I understand everybody's operating in -- I understand you're operating in good faith, the U.S. Trustee's operating in good faith, and try to figure out what that looks like, but that is the challenge.

MS. STRICKLAND: Understood. Your Honor, the only point I wanted to make and the fact that we are sitting in Chapter 11 at this moment until the entry of the order is that there is no doubt that Your Honor has jurisdiction over the assets of the estate. The assets of the estate include cash and two apartments. So I guess I would quibble with the notion that if this is not done with the consent of the debtor for a stipulation that Your Honor does not have the authority to do this, I believe you very much do and in fact cited a case where this exact thing was done as a basis for -- as a mechanism for dealing with the admin.

THE COURT: I haven't had a chance to look at that case. I don't think anybody cited me any cases in the submissions that I got. But I understand and appreciate your recitation --

	30
1	MS. STRICKLAND: Certainly.
2	THE COURT: what's in there.
3	MS. STRICKLAND: And the only reason we didn't argue
4	it is because as Your Honor knows, this issue came up at the
5	very end of the hearing, and we were directed to work it out
6	offline, which we all endeavored to do.
7	THE COURT: Yeah.
8	MS. STRICKLAND: And the purpose of today was in fact
9	to argue this point.
10	THE COURT: Yeah.
11	MS. STRICKLAND: So we didn't spring it on anyone. We
12	followed the procedure. Thank you, Your Honor.
13	THE COURT: I understand it. I mean, I understand.
14	Life doesn't cooperate sometimes with our best laid plans. So
15	it's fine. That's my day job is to deal with that. So I don't
16	begrudge anybody being here to get this resolved.
17	So I'm not sure if it's Mr. Berger or Mr. Fischhoff.
18	Let me hear from you.
19	MR. FISCHOFF: Yes, Judge. Gary Fischhoff on behalf
20	of the debtor. So there was an effort made by the debtor and
21	the Freeman parties as well as the creditors committee to
22	resolve this. And although was caught off guard by the size of
23	the number announced in court on the 12th or the 10th, the
24	debtor recognizes that that's a number that has to be paid once
25	the fee application is filed and it's established the basis for

31

1 that. So that's not the issue today. 2 The issue is the committee and the Freeman plaintiffs want to denude the debtor of every liquid asset or cash on hand 3 that the debtor needs to operate going forward. The debtor 4 5 had --6 THE COURT: So let me frame the issue this way. 7 to the extent that you and your client feel restricted and you feel like somebody is trying to do something inappropriate, you 8 9 hold the keys to solving this problem. Right. So I don't know, and it sounds like people don't know, what amount is in 10 the accounts and what is liquid. That's something everybody, 11 frankly, should know at this point in this case. 12 13 And if you're trying to pay the administrative expenses, if there is a way to do that and you present it to 14 15 me, then that's what signed in the order. What I understand this to be is the default mechanism because people can't get to 16 that point. And so it's --17

MR. FISCHOFF: Well --

19

20

21

22

23

25

THE COURT: -- further than the U.S. Trustee wants to go because I think if I appoint a liquidating trustee, it's hard to imagine that that person isn't sort of under the supervision of that order, and there's the rub. But it's a solvable problem. And so the question is what are the terms under which you want to solve it.

MR. FISCHOFF: Well, I thought the debtor's

32 willingness to have Global or the creditors committee, I'm not 1 2 sure, have a lien on the proceeds from the sale of the New York 3 apartment, which is actively being marketed. I don't know what 4 took place a year ago, but Sotheby's was recently approved in 5 the bankruptcy. And they want to continue with the listing. I understand there's been a little action. No result yet. Maybe 6 7 there's maybe the debtor and Sotheby's have to consult about a little bit of a price reduction in order to get --8 9 THE COURT: But why should people have to --MR. FISCHOFF: -- more (indiscernible) --10 THE COURT: But wait a minute. Why should people have 11 to wait if they are, in fact, liquid assets in an account 12 13 somewhere? So --MR. FISCHOFF: Well --14 15 THE COURT: -- if the thought is Judge, we don't want people to go mucking around in that, you can do what folks in 16 bankruptcy court do all the time, which is essentially make an 17 18 offer. We'll pay this much in cash, and we'll do this like -that's the conversation that I'd hoped was going to occur. 19 20 MR. FISCHOFF: There were negotiations. There were 21 negotiations. 22 THE COURT: So yeah, but I mean, if you don't reach a 23 conclusion, then I don't know how -- I don't have to muck 24 around in the details because the idea that the liquid assets 25 that are available to pay the administrative expenses, which could be much higher, are why there wouldn't be paid for to pay the whatever the approved fees would be. I mean, that's the regular way of doing this. So I'm trying to really stick to the regular way of wrapping up a Chapter 11 case that's being dismissed. So that's my goal. So if the debtor has certain issues and certain ways it wants things to unfold, it's a very much help-me-to-help-you situation, where, again, I don't know that there's any justification for not paying liquid assets that are available.

And so maybe you say, well, the debtor needs a certain amount to live or whatever. That's fine. But right now, the only thing that I understand that's been presented to me is the offer of a lien on the property, which someday will be sold. I don't know when that's going to be. I have this case that people want to dismiss today. And so I don't know that a wait forever to pay an administrative expense in this case that everybody wants to dismiss today is sort of consistent with the regular practice.

MR. FISCHOFF: Well, Judge, so there was discussions about a payment as well as the balance to be paid from the proceeds. Unfortunately, I mean, I can't --

THE COURT: No, I know you didn't reach a conclusion.

I don't know what --

MR. FISCHOFF: We didn't reach the conclusion, but -THE COURT: I don't want to know what the negotiations

34 1 are but --2 MR. FISCHOFF: But the (indiscernible) --3 THE COURT: But wait. But I would urge you and your 4 client to think very clearly about what the alternative is, 5 which is we're going to spend more time and money trying to 6 figure this out. And so the only thing I have in front of me 7 is Judge, we're going to deal with that in a lien someday when 8 the apartment's sold. In any case, that would strike me as, 9 well, that seems odd, and why are we doing that. Aren't there That just does -- now, again, the devil's 10 other alternatives? in the details, but that seems to me something's not answering 11 the mail. 12 So it's twenty after 12. I'm happy to give you all a 13 chance to have a conversation in light of what we talked about 14 today but that focuses on what the liquid assets are that can 15 be paid right now and then whatever else people can agree to. 16 It is in everyone's best interest to get to yes, but it'll get 17 18 paid eventually someday, whenever that apartment is sold, which I have no control over. And so that seems inappropriate 19 20 because the case is going to be dismissed now. So I have to 21 deal with the administrative expenses now. And so I have to do 22 that to the best of my ability. 23 So I would suggest that people think about what the 24 alternatives are that are far less preferable. And because 25 then we're going to have to figure out what the assets are to

	35
1	pay the administrative expenses. So I would strongly suggest
2	to do what parties do well here, what attorneys are
3	particularly good at in bankruptcy, is to have a discussion and
4	try to reach a sensible solution.
5	So I don't think I can give you the Zoom because I
6	think the Zoom may have other people on it. You can all set up
7	your own Zoom and have a conversation. But I can keep this
8	open and come back in, say, fifteen minutes and see where you
9	are. But again, I'm trying to
10	MR. FISCHOFF: How about an hour, Judge?
11	THE COURT: What's that?
12	MR. FISCHOFF: How about an hour? I need to reach my
13	client. I don't know if he's available immediately. Can we
14	make it an hour?
15	THE COURT: Well, I can do an hour, if that works for
16	other folks.
17	MS. STRICKLAND: Your Honor, it works for us as well.
18	I guess the question I would ask, since we did have a lot of
19	conversations about quantum, is can debtor's counsel represent
20	how much cash is in the are in the debtor accounts?
21	THE COURT: Well, I think
22	MR. FISCHOFF: I can't (indiscernible).
23	THE COURT: that I think that's one way to go.
24	The other is to make it an offer that's good enough for people
25	to say I can live with that And whatever else I might ask you to say, again, I'm not going to -- I don't want to get in anybody's kitchen in terms of trying to figure out what the negotiations are, but there's lots of ways to skin a cat.

But again, the alternative is to make this my problem, to figure this out. And so the U.S. Trustee's office has concern about a liquidating trustee. I do as well. I haven't read that case. I'm happy to read it in the break. But if you don't go that route, you go the route of, well, the judge is going to figure it out now.

And so I don't know. The way to do that is to say what are the assets. So what are you -- how are you going to pay this. And so we're going to spend a lot of time and money on that, money that can be better spent, frankly, paying the administrative expenses to get the case dismissed, which is the result that your client, the debtor, wants. That's the result other parties want as well, but it is what the debtor wants.

So I'm happy to give an hour. We can round it to 1:30, and we can hop back on the Zoom. But again, just be practical. Think about what the alternatives are. The alternatives are a lot of time -- the whole point of dismissal, as I understand it and is sort of clearly, I think, reflected in the decision is, is what I understood from you all is we need to move on, Judge.

And so if we can't resolve this issue, we can't move on. And so then the dismissal is a Pyrrhic victory. And so I

37 strongly urge people to think about what the alternatives are,
1
    and they're not good.
             So I'll give you an hour, and I will log back on at 3
 4
          And I appreciate your efforts. And in the meantime, I shall read the case that's been cited.
 5
 6
             So anything else before we take a break?
 7
             MR. FISCHOFF: Just one question. It's going to be 8 the same password to log back in at 1:30?
 9
             THE COURT: Same Zoom session.
10
             MR. FISCHOFF:
                            Okay.
             THE COURT: Okay. Fair question.
11
12
             Anybody else?
             All right. Thank you all very much. Sorry to further 13 impose on your time this afternoon, but hopefully this will be 14
15
    productive.
                 Thank you very much. See you soon.
16
             MS. STRICKLAND:
                              Thank you, Your Honor.
         (Recess from 12:18 p.m., until 1:38 p.m.)
17
18
             THE COURT: (Audio begins midsentence) -- Lane in the 19
    United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New 20
    York and to continue this morning's hearing in the Rudolph 21
    Giuliani case. And I think I see all the same individuals on 22 the Zoom line as were here this morning. So I think we can 23 proceed by getting sort of an update. I'm not sure who the 24 right person to ask for that update is.
25
             MS. STRICKLAND: I'm happy to, Your Honor.

1 THE COURT: Please.

MS. STRICKLAND: So Your Honor, we haven't made really any progress because the moment we hung up, we said, can you tell us how much cash we're dealing with.

The debtor, I think, three minutes ago sent us one statement for a bank account, which showed that since the discussion we had with Your Honor, an account went from approximately 60,000 dollars in cash to about half that much. The New York expenses for the condo of 14,000 dollars went out on -- that check was cashed on July 12th. A 25,000 dollar Florida fees paid also since that time. There are expenses from Milwaukee where the RNC convention is. That the wire transfer of the 25,000 to the Southlake Condo Association was made by wire on July 15th. And then there are a variety of other marketing firm expenses, Amazon, Apple, you name it, all relatively small charges. But about half of the debtor's cash in this one account alone has been dissipated since we were last before you on Wednesday the 10th.

And on top of that, we requested all of the other bank accounts. And while debtor's counsel characterized the amounts as "small", through no fault of debtor's counsel, they don't have the information either.

So I think that is why, at least as far as our proposal on behalf of the Freeman plaintiffs, we suggest that Your Honor order that what was in the accounts as of July 11th, that amount be required to be paid to GDR. And then Your Honor, on behalf of my clients, we would just accept dismissal effective immediately. And we'll go about our business as other applicable law permits. But the debtor, I think, is up to up to Giuliani shenanigans yet again.

THE COURT: All right. Mr. Dublin.

MR. DUBLIN: Well, Your Honor just heard from Ms. Strickland is actually worse than I think than the debtor had originally proposed, which was giving a lien on the shares of the New York apartment. We don't need to rehash all the arguments that were made. Ms. Strickland has obviously changed her position. Obviously, it suits the pecuniary interests of her client, which we've already talked about the respect and admiration we have for her clients.

But this is an issue of satisfying the administrative expenses and the benefits that were obtained by the estate for the services provided by the committee's professionals, which we believe appropriate provisions in a dismissal order need to be included to ensure that those amounts are satisfied. And unfortunately, we've had no discussions with debtor's counsel since we hung up with Your Honor following this morning's session, and we find ourselves in the same spot we were in.

THE COURT: All right. Ms. Schwartz, anything from the U.S. Trustee's office before I hear from the debtor?

MS. SCHWARTZ: Nobody contacted us, Judge. But we're

40 1
    hearing it live here now, so these are the same -- 2
             THE COURT: All right.
 3
             MS. SCHWARTZ: It's the same -- we're at the same 4 place, Your Honor, as we were -- 5
             THE COURT: Got it.
             MS. SCHWARTZ: -- when Your Honor gave the parties a chance to try to find a resolution.
 6
7
8
             THE COURT: All right. Let me hear from debtor's 9 counsel.
             MR. BERGER: Yeah, Your Honor. Heath Berger. Your 10
    Honor, we got off. We got in touch with the debtor as quick as 11 we could. Not always sometimes the easiest thing to get in 12 touch with the debtor. We did. We were able to get the one 13 bank statement, which is his main checking account, which we 14
15
    did. As soon as we got it, I reached out to Ms. Strickland.
    We sent it out to her.
16
             The only issue I have with Ms. Strickland's proposal 17 is some of the money out of that account since the filing was 18 19
    used to maintain the Florida condo, which is obviously an asset 20
    I'm sure Ms. Strickland would like to be maintained going on 21 down the road but -- 22
             THE COURT: Well, that's nice, but it won't -- 23
             MR. FISCHOFF: Yeah.
24
             THE COURT: -- be an asset maintained in the 25 bankruptcy.

41 1 MR. DUBLIN: I understand. 2 THE COURT: So here's the problem. Everyone knew this 3 issue was going to come up today. Right. So this notion that 4 nobody has a fallback position or has thought about what the 5 next steps are is frankly unbelievable and uniquely unhelpful. 6 And so I understand, Ms. Strickland, in the interest 7 of her client, is interested, as she should be, in getting a dismissal right away, regardless of other considerations 8 9 because that's frankly the right thing to do for our clients. I understand also Mr. Dublin's not there, particularly because 10 these are professionals that were retained by the committee. 11 And so I understand that. 12 And frankly, I'm a patient man, but there are several 13 ways to do this. And I've been trying to really be reasonable 14 15 and trying to encourage and appropriately prompt an efficient 16 way to do this. But there are ways to do this include requiring your client to come and sit in that witness box over 17 there and have a discussion about the available liquid assets 18 that can be used to pay these professionals. 19 20 So does your client want to do that? 21 MR. FISCHOFF: Your Honor, no. Your Honor, we kind of indicated that we would turn over. And if Your Honor ends up 22

THE COURT: But I don't know what to order to turn putting the lien --

over because nobody's told me what there is.

MR. FISCHOFF: We will provide to Ms. Strickland -THE COURT: So I mean, listen, it's the same song over and over again that was laid out in the decision. But again, even a dismissal, which your client wants, you can't get out of your own way. So this can go -- I have a jurisdictional basis for requiring transparency into the assets as to getting this dismissal appropriately effectuated.

So if your client persists in this course of action, which is essentially to stick his head in the sand, there are a lot of bad things that can happen, or a lot -- let me rephrase it. There are a lot of things that your client doesn't want to happen will happen. But again, your client holds the key. So none of this is a surprise. So I don't want to hear he's hard to get in touch with. I don't want to hear any of this is a surprise. People have been trying to get all this kind of information for many months.

So I'm going to ponder what I'm going to do, and you should ponder what you're going to do. And so you're going to give me an update, tomorrow, twenty-four hours. Actually, we'll make it at high noon. That's appropriately theatrical. And you're going to give me an update. And then I'm going to decide what order I want to enter and what that looks like. And I still have jurisdiction. I can dismiss the case. I can retain jurisdiction as it pertains to finding out what the assets are that are available to pay the administrative expenses in the case. And I can even decide that there will be a dismissal, but that's all conditioned upon this and that we need to figure that out.

There's a lot of ways for this to go. And a lot of them are the exact things that your client doesn't want to have to do, and that's why your client wants a dismissal. But this isn't complicated nor is it unexpected nor is it unusual. So I'm really at a loss. So I strongly, strongly urge you and your client to sit down and figure out what you really want the end game to look like here so --

MR. FISCHOFF: Understood, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. So I have lots of different versions of different orders. I think I have everybody's view. And we'll see where we end up.

So I would like -- first of all, I'm going to direct that by no later than 11 o'clock tomorrow that there is an update provided to the other interested parties by debtor's counsel, and that includes the Freeman plaintiffs, the committee, and the U.S. Trustee's office. You can do it by email. You can do it -- I mean, in a perfect world, people would be talking. We obviously don't live in a perfect world.

And then by noon, I want an update. It can be filed on the docket. And then I'll ponder what the appropriate steps forward are.

1	So with that, is there anything further from the
2	Freeman plaintiffs?
3	MS. STRICKLAND: Your Honor, I just want a
4	clarification in terms of are we having a is this being
5	adjourned, and we're having a hearing at noon tomorrow. We are
6	available if that is what Your Honor is
7	THE COURT: No, no. I'm not requiring anybody to be
8	available for hearing tomorrow. I, frankly, don't know what
9	the appropriate next steps are. Like you all are doing, I'm
LO	considering my options. And so chambers will reach out if
L1	there's a need for an additional hearing.
L2	So I suppose there potentially could be, depending on
L3	what update I'm given tomorrow, but I'm not requiring anybody
L4	to be available tomorrow afternoon. I'm just requiring the
L5	update. So I appreciate the question. It's understandable.
L6	But no, don't change your plans for me. And I will, certainly,
L7	and chambers, we'll figure out we'll figure out next steps
L8	and then figure out if that includes getting together but
L9	MS. STRICKLAND: Thank you.
20	THE COURT: Mr. Dublin, anything from the committee?
21	MR. DUBLIN: Nothing further, Your Honor. Thank you
22	for your time today.
23	THE COURT: All right. And from the U.S. Trustee's
24	office?
2.5	MS SCHWARTZ: No thank you Your Honor

45
              THE COURT: All right. And from the debtor?
1
 2
             MR. FISCHOFF: No, Your Honor. Thank you.
 3
             THE COURT: All right. Thank you very much. Have a
